Solo Printing announces the acquisition of two new Muller Martini Alegro Perfect Binding lines.

Solo Printing is a provider of superior color lithography and is one of the nation's largest minority-owned companies, servicing the United States and the Caribbean. From state-of-the-art prepress to the finest web and sheet-fed printing, Solo Printing's wide range of equipment allows them to specialize in various products from booklets to brochures and direct mail, making them well equipped to meet your printing needs.

This acquisition of not only one but two Muller Martini Alegro perfect binding lines will increase Solo's output capacity, while providing the added security of redundant production systems for future growth opportunities. "It is an honor to continue to partner with a company like Solo Printing, which has a similar family-backed heritage as Muller Martini, and help them stabilize their operation with these lines that follow our Smart Factory and Finishing 4.0 design ideology", states Andy Fetherman, President and CEO of Muller Martini Corp. These 7,000 books-per-hour binding lines with fully automated servo-controlled functionality and equipped with the latest quality-control components will be replacing an aging binding line. In addition, one of the lines is equipped with PUR binding capability including vision control to ensure glue quality and consistency.

As a major supplier to many of the nation's fortune 500 and fortune 1000 companies, Solo continues its investment into the latest and new technology to help them meet their clients' growing needs. When asked about their decision-making process, VP of Sales, Robert Hernandez said, "When it comes to equipment purchases, we only partner with the top companies in the industry, which is why we have partnered with Muller Martini for over 30 years. Muller's continued innovation in equipment support services are second to none in the print industry. They are a vital part to our continued success". Their reputation as a forward-thinking provider of print and print services has helped them develop a growing presence in industries such as healthcare, retail, hospitality, and financial institutions.
